New rebel forces fight to defend marriage

In these last decades, it has seemed as we had lost the common sense and good judgement but apparently, it started to show first signs of recovery. Anyway, there is a long way to go and serious commitment is needed by everyone.

There are first signs of an increasing fatigue and impatience with a society based on sex, money and power. New generations do not want to rush towards consumerism and irresponsibility.

In US, as in UK, in these last weeks two important researches have been published. They demonstrate that young generations are more and more faithful within marriage and avoid divorce.

In addition, the impressive result of the referendum in Romania that has introduced in the Constitution the definition of natural family (between a woman and a man) is the demonstration that thousands of people consider again marriage and family fundamental values.

The US research demonstrates that American people under 45 found a new way to rebel against their parents: they reaffirm their intention to be married and not divorced. From 2008 to 2016, divorce decreased of 18% for “millennials” in US.

Therefore, on one hand older people keep divorcing sometimes more than once in their life, on the other hand young people demonstrate to be loyal with marriage and family. (Bowling Green State University)

Marriage Foundation has observed the same situation in a research recently published. It demonstrates that in England divorce has decreased of 15% in last ten years.

The reduction is higher (39%) with people who has got married and built a family for more than five years.

A growing awareness of the importance of marriage and of responsibility in it is present and it is a challenge to the consumerism ideology in personal and social relationships.

It is not a coincidence if 3.5 millions of people in Romania not only raised signatures for the Constitutional referendum on Marriage, but also fought against Amnesty International that tried to block it because “voting in favor of marriage between a man and a woman would be a violation of human Rights”.

Romanian people voted and succeeded, new generations in US and UK fight for family. Let's continue our commitment!
