The end of a Myth

Dear friend and supporter,

We have all been taught in schools around the West part of the world to consider Scandinavian countries as a paradise where everything, every aspect of private and social life is a wonderland.

This myth is finished. What has happened in these last days and months demonstrates how that image was “built”, “invented”, “easy”, a trend in the ‘80s of last century.

Freedom of religion in the beautiful Sweden has finished.

In these last days we had news that demonstrates it. The public information service “Nrk” has assigned weather forecast program to an Islamic journalist wearing veil on her head. But we know that on the same TV channels journalists and programs have been forbidden for years to show the Christian religious symbol: the cross. This has not been requested by Swedish Islamic communities, but it has been decided by TV service broadcasting in Norway and Sweden because it is said that “the cross offends Islamic sensibility”.

Another point is the violation of freedom of conscience. We have to remember the situation of the midwife and gynecologist Gillmark , now before the Human Rights European Court in Strasbourg. She was not permitted to work in Sweden because she consciously said no to abortion and euthanasia.

Doctors and paramedics are intended to help the sick and not to kill them. Can they be considered guilty if they want to bring children to life and not to death with abortion? No. Actually in Sweden yes.

Not to mention freedom of education; Sweden and Norway look more and more contrary to the fundamental human right that every parent has, that specific right that we find clear in every declaration, convention on Human Rights.

In Sweden it is expected that the European court gives back their child back to Christen and Annie Johansson. They would like to take care of their son Domenic, 14 years old, now in custody to the Sweden state. The boy has been forbidden to meet his parents for 5 years and 5 months because they were educating him at home.

In Norway after years of court battle and other countries' strong position, especially Romania, the state had to give back children to Bodnariu family, after it had got them because they were educated at home according to Christian principles.

A paradise? The illusion of a paradise on earth has always turned into the hell, a nightmare, throughout the human history.

That is happening in Scandinavia too; to people who declare Scandinavian sexual freedom it is sufficient to point out that in these last months Sweden and Denmark had to support researches and mass media campaigns to invite people to have more sex and so have more children. The emerging serious problem? Scandinavian people have no children and sexual abstinence is high.

People in South Europe were accused of stigmatizing sex, considering it wrong and sinful, weren't they? Now Scandinavian governments pay expensive researches and mass media campaigns in order to explain that sex is good, useful to society if it brings children to life. A superficial idea of sex has taken to the opposite behavior and now that this myth has finished a solution must be found.

The wonderland country is not so good in the end for people who live there. We can see it in the last WHO report on suicidal behavior (World Health Organization); it certifies how number of suicides increased from 2000 to 2015 in Sweden (21% men, 9,5% women). Despite the serious economic and social crisis in Greece, the percentage of suicides is only 6% for men and 1,6% for women.

It is time to leave behind false myth and look to the future without wearing blinkers.
